Additional

repudiation and alluded to Mr. Bacon's speech and the report of the committee of the general

James Glover, was a chief justice of the bar, was another. McCay, one of the most distinguished lawyers of the state, was another, constituting the supreme court. There were also several judges of the circuit and of the county courts. All natives of Georgia but two, and one of them had been a judge of the southern circuit before coming to Georgia. The governor had been having been fourteen years a resident of the state, and president of a railroad company before the war. Dr. Angier, the treasurer, was a man of high ability, and had been for some years mayor of Atlanta, after all these charges were disposed. Mr. Cotting, secretary of the state, a man of high ability, had been for some years a citizen of the state. Mr. Bell was comptroller, a native of the state and a man of high reputation; Governor Conley was president of the senate, a native of the state, and had been for some years the city council, and elected mayor of Augusta.

Newbrier, the speaker of the house, a native Georgian and a man of high reputation as an educator. Among them there was but one man who had been a citizen of Georgia after the war, (General Lewis), and he was placed at the head of the public schools. He had lost an arm in the service of the United States and had remained in the service of the republic until the close of the war. Reference was made to the report of the committee and its allusion to despotic military power and to the state being misrepresented and gagged and the whole government machinery in the hands of strangers and traitors. In answer to all this, the speaker presented the record, showing that within six days after the close of the war was convened, twenty-six of its original members were turned out, and in their stead were placed twenty-six gentlemen who were defeated at the polls—a somewhat strange act, if they had been bound for plunder, to have voted themselves into office. The same day, for the first time, the Albany railroad company was passed six months after the colored members were turned out on the 3rd of September, 1868, and ten months before they were re-seated in January, 1870.

Speaking of their sympathy for the people of Georgia, he showed from the record where they appeared to adhere to the same class of citizens of Georgia from disability, and had fixed as a qualification for the governor of the state a residence of six years, which would have debarred themselves from holding the office, had they been

He then presented the condition of the state of Georgia during the war, the violation of its legislature in 1865 and '66, pages 211 and 212, that she was overrun by both armies, her crops destroyed, her investments depreciated, her accumulated capital of nearly a century, three hundred millions, wiped out. He referred to the relief laws to shield property from sale; to the broken bonds and the laws for providing for the continuance of suits brought against them, to the collection of taxes suspended, and he said that this picture was the subject matter referred to by the supreme court in one of its decisions, quoting the thirty-seventh Georgia page 161, with the words, "the assets of Georgia were completely exhausted."

He referred to those neighbors bringing in over three millions of money to be expended in the state, as an act which revived her industries and to Governor Jenkins's return of the seal of his office to Governor Smith, stating his high regard for the latter and his indignation at the touch of the military usurper or upstart pretender, remarking that such language was not the sentiment with which the people of this country regarded the hero of Gettysburg, General Meade, or the gentleman who had been selected by the United States to represent the honor of the American flag as presiding officer at West Point, General Ruger.

He passed to the question of its having been said that Georgia gave two millions of repudiated troude a hearing, and said that the contrary was true. Jerry Black, with all his distinction as a lawyer, was among the speakers on the question. Governor Jenkins appealed to the convention of 1877 to submit the question of a hearing to the courts and was refused, and the governor said he was not prepared to vote for this wholesale repudiation. He referred to Mr. Stephens' letter in regard to the Branch bonds, which he had written to the governor, and said that the Legislature declared their validity, in which Governor Stephens said: "In my opinion a refusal to pay them is nothing short of a public swindle, not less infamous than the obtaining of money by an individual on false pretenses and representations."

ing, "the state will be driven to abandon this position and permit a case to be made by her creditors to test the validity of these bonds in the courts of the country, or she must stand dishonored in the estimation of all good men, and her credit must sink to a ruinous level." He referred to the case of the Brooklyn in New York, in New York, of Judge Knott, Randolph, Robinson and Sedwick, attorneys of the same city, thus marshaling against the opinions of the committee and the politicians of the legislature the opinions of four governors, three members of the senate and much of the state, besides the attorneys of New York.

board committee had referred to it as a trade, the authority for which they could not find in the constitution, and in this connection he brought up the act of the general assembly of 1877, in which there was an exchange of sold bonds for the bonds of the Chicago and North Western railroad company. That if the trade was made in the first instance, it might be replied that it was also a bad trade in the second instance. He referred to the great delicacy of courts in deciding laws to be unconstitutional, quoting a great many authorities, among which he relied on 4th Wallace, 211, and 100 U. S. 100, and said that he had no notice to affect innocent purchasers of these bonds; that no question had been raised except by the treasurer, in regard to lithograph-

Of the Bainbridge, Cuthbert and Columbus bonds, as they have been issued and the holders had never presented them as claimed against the state. In regard to the Cherokee, he showed that this enterprise had been regarded by the state as a feeder to the state road. That the legislature delegated the governor to endorse $25,000 a mile when he was authorized to endorse bonds for the state. He said the bonds had been issued on a letter of Mark A. Cooper, president of the company, to pay for the iron and advances in building it, and as to the technical question as to the equal amount invested by private persons, the road had cost nearly amount equal to the endorsement and over had been subscribed for by Mark A. Cooper and his friends and it was not the rule of commercial paper to hold the purchase of a bond in Wall street, New York to a knowledge of whether stock subscribed or had either been paid for or not. He said that these bonds in the aggregate had a unit over 400 and a great deal of the money was raised from the sale of the taxable property over five million dollars. He touched upon the general statement that the settlement of the Brunswick bonds was unconstitutional. Among other things because iron was taken in aid of the rebellion, and argued that this did not apply to the owners of the property who were not the owners at the time residing in a foreign state.

In regard to Henry Clews, he said there was a claim for five hundred and sixty-two thousand dollars now in judgment, unpaid in a Georgia court, in Glynn county, and that he had advanced very large sums of money on bonds which had been placed in his hands as collateral; and to reimburse himself he had secured a hearing in the supreme court to test their validity and show his case was indefensible upon principles of common justice, none from whom it had received so much financial aid, and who had suffered such severe losses by the transaction.

He then discussed the theory upon which Wolf and Rogers were resisting upon hearing the new issues made by the substitution of investment securities.

anks on the ground that repudiation had occurred over ten years ago, as not being tenable in law; for every non failure to pay was a fresh default, and there was no act of the legislature of the state that was not responsible until the acts of 1865 and '77, which had been repealed by a vote of 100 to 73, and the sixty amendment a part of the constitution of 1858 of this state.

Henry Clews was an attentive listener to the arguments. Before adjournment he made a few remarks to the deputy attorney general. He said that the original act of repudiation had been repeated each six months since, by the refusal of the state to recognize and pay the coupons as they matured. "he needed state's act to that of a bank robber—one, he said, seeks protection behind its sovereign rights, and the other in Canada. He believed that saving banks who were allowed to make these bonds would be ruined, and added that a mere whisper during a panic that a certain institution held $500,000 of them, and they were about to be repudiated, would bring about disaster.

There will be further argument in Albany Monday.

A MECHANIC'S GOOD FORTUNE.

A Mechanic in Hall County invents a Machine of Great Value to Planters.

The Government has a right interesting story to tell this morning. In Hall County there lived a poor but hard working man named T. N. Renfro, a mechanic by trade. One day he was at a gin when with the suddenness of a lightning flash the cotton caught fire and instantly the lint room was ablaze. Those who were operating the gin fled precipitately, but Renfro, who was standing near, seized two buckets of water and dashed them not on the fire, but into the mouth of the gin. The wheels revolving like lightning, took up the water and the centrifugal force threw the water all through the gin, so that it reached the flames fairly sizzling with speed, and in less than a second the water was going down the lint room where the burning cotton was. The fire was checked, nearly extinguished, and it was an easy matter to put it out by hand. If the brave mechanic had not run out of water he could have done it in perfect safety. He had put out the conflagration. As it was he got the fire under control in a second, and the lint room was saved. The gin was saved, and the planter who had been so anxious to get his cotton ginned, was saved. The machine was a perfect success. It was never invented before. And Mann & Co., of the Scientific American said of it: "You have the best simple invention that has been devised in the last few years." The simplicity of the extinguisher is its great charm, no more however, than the way it does its work. Above the gin at a proper elevation is a tank for water. From this tank runs a hose with an iron pipe which at the gin connects with an iron hose, which at the land of the gin connects with a hose which runs along the water. The pipe runs down under the gin, and a perforated pipe with the holes runs lengthwise the brushes and directly under them. It is a hose which runs along the water and shoots up through innumerable holes in the pipe and throws the water through the gin and into the lint room. The centrifugal force is so great that the water is easily thrown into the lint room and completely floods a lint room and gin room. While this automatic work is going on the feet of the gin are free to use the other hose in turning water in places not covered by the black spray made by the brushes. Any man that looks at the machine will see that Mr. Renfro has struck it right. The truth of this was demonstrated in Macon county, where recently a gin of the machine was sold in a few days. Macon county is in the cotton country, and the planters down there know what a blessing it is to have a machine that is a practical affair. It takes only fifteen or twenty minutes to load a lint room with the machine and the planters who have tried it are greatly pleased and pronounce it a great success in every way.

Great loss is sustained by planters every year by reason of smoldering gins and pieces of lint in the cotton, and from other causes. This can be nearly all now be stopped. The machine is so cheap that it can be afforded by any planter. A number of certificates have been obtained from those who have used the machine.

Mr. J. F. Law, ordinary of Hall county, says it is the best he has ever seen. It is a machine that can put out a fire in a second.

Mr. A. R. Smith, clerk superior court of the same county, says it is all that is claimed for it, and does its work admirably.

Colonel Oliver Chiles, state senator, says that the extinguisher fills a long felt want and will effectively put out the fire in gins.

Mr. G. B. Thompson says that he would not be without one in his ginhouse for four times the price.

The invention is now shown on the market, and so far has met with great success. Renfro's gin has been sold in the city of Atlanta, and has been sold since Will Wright invented the first gin. It has been inventoried by insurance men as one of the best inventions of the age. The machine can be seen at 21 Marietta street. County, state and the national right can be negotiated for.

SOCIETY SKETCHES.

EVENTS IN COMMENCEMENT WEEK IN THE STATE.

Miss Mullin and Blue Ribbon Neckties the Fashion of the Day—The School Girls and Her Efforts—Movements of the Society People in all Parts of the State Last Week.

The picnic of the Nine O'clock German club at Jewell last Thursday was one of the most delightful social events of the season. There were present Mr. and Mrs. J. Lowry, Mr. and Mrs. N. O. Harris, Mr. and Mrs. John Clarke, Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Freeman, Mrs. Charles Harris, Miss Miriam Armstrong, Laura Kimball, Bessie Hammond, Nellie Greene, Maud Kirk, Fannie Clarke, Maud Dickerson, Ida May Gartrell, Annie Bell Maud, Sallie Johnston and Belle Creary. Messrs. Charles S. Northern, P. B. Clarke, D. B. Harris, Frank Holton, J. C. Freeman, G. O. Ellis, Sam Hall, Alton Angier, J. F. Amerson, H. G. Northern, H. C. Glenn, J. T. Orme, John E. Palmer, of St. Louis, and Mr. Bromley, of Nashville.

There was dancing to delightful music in the forenoon. At two o'clock dinner was served in sumptuous style. In the afternoon the ladies were amused by a match game of baseball in which the following gentlemen participated:

First nine—J. B. Clarke, pitcher; C. S. Northern, second base; T. B. Palmer, first base; Howell Glenn, shortstop; G. O. Ellis, third base. Second nine—J. M. Freeman, p.; Dr. N. O. Harris, base; Frank Kimball, short stop; Charles Warr, first base; P. B. Clarke, second base; J. E. Palmer, fielder; Sam Hall, catcher. Umpire, Mr. J. C. Freeman. Mr. Robert Thompson, Jr. The game was marked by several brilliant plays on both sides, and the interest in it had become intense, when it was interrupted at the end of the third inning by a shower. The score stood at that time as follows: Home, 1; visitors, 0. The game had to be finally called. But the rain did not dampen the spirits of the young people, who continued to have a good time and came back to the city with pleasant recollections of a day in the woods.

Next Saturday one of the pleasantest social events of the season will occur. The Young Men's Library association will give an excursion to New Holland springs. It will be under the immediate charge of the directors of the association, and every arrangement will be perfected for the pleasure and comfort of the party. The train will leave the union depot at 8 o'clock and will arrive at New Holland at 9:30. The return train will leave New Holland at 7:30, arriving in Atlanta at 8:30. This will give a full day for pleasure. There will be dancing to delightful music. The beautiful surroundings of the springs and the hotel have been greatly improved, and no more inviting place for a day of pleasure could be desired. Tickets for the round trip will be only one dollar.

On Thursday, the 15th, at the residence of the bride father in LaGrange, Rev. S. F. Callaway united in marriage Mr. Edward D. Lupo, of Atlanta, and Miss Irene Ward.

The ceremony took place at eleven o'clock in the morning, and after congratulations from a host of friends, and a delightful lunch, the bride left for her Atlanta home. The bride is one of the most charming and accomplished belles in LaGrange. She recently graduated from the LaGrange Female college, where she made a brilliant record. Mr. Lupo is a young gentleman whose fine looks, ready and industrious habits and abilities have won him many friends wherever he is known. He now holds a responsible position in the large establishment of Winship & Co., of this city.

The summer resort season has opened with great prospects. Railroad rates are low to the resorts, in all parts of the country, and a very large patronage is expected by the proprietors of places of pleasure and comfort for the summer months. Atlanta is within one hundred miles of a dozen delightful places to spend the heated term, but what is the use of leaving such a summer climate as Atlanta has for any on the face of the earth? Still people will go about to find change and relaxation from the ordinary cares of home life. The Georgia resorts, in the mountains, at the springs and on the seaboard are now fitted up in first class style and offer inducements sufficient to attract and to entertain all Georgia folk during the present season.

A most delightful sailing party returned to the city last Monday evening. The party enjoyed a visit of ten days at the beautiful resort of the White Sulphur Springs, in the city of Mr. J. C. Smith, in Cobbham.

While there the young couples occupied themselves in rowing, fishing, dancing, etc. All were loth to leave the place, where so many happy hours were spent.

Among those in the party were: Misses Lela Mayson, Minnie Duck, Berta Robson, Gustie Morgan, Marion Duck, and Messrs. Gus Rodding, Lela R. Rimes, Joe G. Gause, James Spullock, Ralph Scott and Master Fred Duck.

The party was chaperoned by Mr. George Duck, of New York, and Mrs. H. R. S. Duck, of Kirkwood.

At the Kimball house last Tuesday Mr. George Taylor entertained a party of gentlemen at dinner. There were present besides Mr. Taylor: Messrs. Joe Thompson, Jr., H. W. Gady, D. B. Bain, James Patton of Richmond, Walter Allen of New Orleans, C. C. Howard of Selma, John Postell, W. A. Camp, F. H. Richardson, H. C. Glenn, L. F. Thomas, Jr., B. H. Hill, Jr., Y. Y. Zachary, and W. E. Rogers, wife of Mr. Rogers. The menu was a model of taste and the dinner was highly enjoyable.

Twenty-three girls will graduate from the Girls' High school next Friday night. Most of them will go to colleges and to finishing schools, but some will enter "society" very soon. The class is noted alike for its beauty and its intelligence. The graduating class of the Boys' High school is much smaller, but equally as well educated. Nearly all of them contemplate a further course in school.

Handsome invitations were sent out for the sixteenth annual banquet of Gamma chapter of the Chi Phi fraternity, which will be given at the residence of Mr. J. S. Stewart in Oxford on the evening of June 30. It will be one of the most interesting features of the commencement exercises of Emory college. A number of members of the fraternity living in Atlanta will attend.

Cards are out for the wedding of Miss Alice Thomas, daughter of Mr. Stevens Thomas, of Athens, to Mr. Joseph H. Fleming, of the same city. The marriage will occur on Wednesday evening, June 24th, at half past eight o'clock. Both the parties have many friends in Atlanta.

Sir: I am pleased to report that I have been entirely cured of indigestion by the use of your Dyspeptic Balm. I was induced by a friend to try it, after having tried almost every remedy known for my disease, without the slightest effect. I took only three small bottles of your medicine before I was entirely well. I suffered several years, and although it has been three years since I used your preparation, I have had no return of it.
